

Tanya Brittain University of Saskatchewan, Ph D. History

Tanya is currently pursuing a Ph.D. in History at the University of Saskatchewan, where her research focuses on global feminist media and the development of women's alternative news services through UNESCO. Specifically, she studied the Women's Feature Service (1980–2000) in New Delhi, India to understand how feminist journalism shaped international discourse on gender equality. Her academic journey began as a mature student overcoming significant personal challenges, and it has deepened her commitment to advocacy for women and girls.

